

Meteorite + Impotence

The year 2013. A vast meteorite looms mysteriously close to Earth. A man who has been unable to make love to his wife for years. Sapped of our confidence, will we ever be able to rise again – stronger, harder, ever-reaching for the sky?

Omoi SASAKI

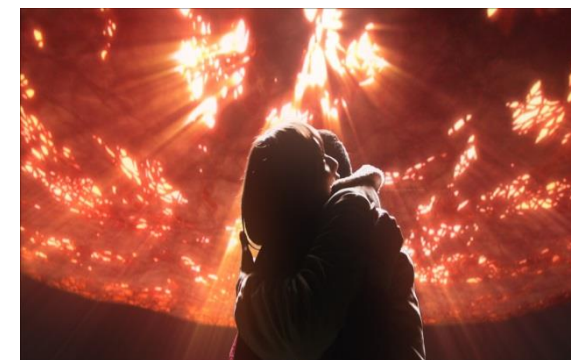

Born 1978 in Yamaguchi Prefecture. While an undergraduate at the Waseda University School of Commerce, Sasaki began studying theater under the tutelage of stage director, actor, and producer Show Ryuzanji. He began making films in 2004. His 2009 feature-length film “Left Out” was accepted into the 31st Pia Film Festival and was also nominated for the Dragons and Tigers Award (given to emerging film directors from the Asia-Pacific region) at the Vancouver International Film Festival. His follow-up, 2011’s “A Beginning”, was shot in Canada, indicating his strong interest in making films both domestically and abroad.
